Empathy Map Canvas:

An empathy map is a simple visual that puts together what a user thinks, feels, hears, sees, says and does, along with the pains they face and the gains they are looking for. It helps in understanding the person who will actually use the solution before building it.

For this project, the user is an employee who needs to report an IT issue at work, whether it is about the network, hardware, software or access. The map below looks at the experience from that employee's side.

From Pain to Gain

The pains on the map are the points this project works on. Each one is matched below with the part of the solution that deals with it, and the gain the employee ends up with.

In short, a guided Record Producer replaces informal reporting, UI Policies and controlled choices keep the data clean, every issue gets its own auto-generated number, and the Service Portal gives employees one place to start from.
